

WACKY HOTELS

MANY TRAVELERS ARE LOOKING FOR SOMETHING DIFFERENT, AND THESE HOTELS FIT THE BILL.

reggae rooms

Marley Resort & Spa in Nassau, The Bahamas: The family of reggae legend Bob Marley opened a 16-suite luxury resort last summer. Each of the themed suites is named with a Marley song title: “Kinky Reggae,” “Nice Time” and “Kaya,” among others. And the restaurant, Simmer Down, features Bob’s favorites dishes. www.marleyresort.com

the best — and only — room in the house

The One Hotel in Siam Reap, Cambodia, may be one of the most luxurious hotels in the world. Or the smallest. Or maybe even both. Despite having only one room, this hotel has everything a normal hotel would have, including a reception area, doorman and the full services found in any respectable hotel setting. The single room can even be turned into a restaurant on demand. www.theonehotelangkor.com

a dog-friendly hotel

Dog Bark Park Inn in Cottonwood, Idaho: This hotel is encased in “the world’s largest beagle,” offering accommodations for four, full bath, kitchen appliances and breakfast; no phone or television. www.dogbarkparkinn.com

i think, therefore i’ll stay

Hotel Filosoof in Amsterdam: This hotel occupies three late-19th-century houses. Each of the 38 rooms is devoted to a different philosopher or school of thought. There’s a Nietzsche room, a Zen room, a Marx, an Aristotle, etc. Each is decorated individually with appropriate paintings, books, sculptures and murals. Even the placemats at breakfast are covered with “words of the wise.” www.hoteldefilosoof.nl

don’t like the view? wait a few hours

Marmara Antalya in Mahalleli, Turkey: Claiming to be the world’s only revolving hotel, this 24-room property revolves completely in anywhere from two to 22 hours, depending on which room you occupy. Guests can go to sleep facing the sea and wake up facing the pool. www.themarmarahotels.com

pipe dreaming

Daspark Hotel: In the middle of a public park in Lintz, Austria, this hotel provides accommodations in three drainpipes; each tiny room has a bed, bedside table and lamp. www.dasparkhotel.net
